Quiet Session of Town Council Last Monday

Town Cannot Get Prosperity Bonds For Street Work

Very little business of importance came before the Town Council last Monday evening and as a result it was a short session.

John Mutlaka wrote offering $100.00 for building and lot on First St. S. E. The offer was accepted.

A letter was read from J. L. Johnson M. L. A. regarding street work in town. He enclosed a letter from Hon. W. A. Falow which stated that under existing conditions it would be impossible to appropriate any more prosperity bonds to any municipality. The whole matter is now under review in order to determine in what way the government may cope with the situation but until the policy has been definitely determined it is quite impossible for him to make any definite statement.

Monthly accounts as passed by the finance committee were approved for payment.

Mr. W. King, who was one of the pilgrims to Vimy, returned home Sunday.

The local Masonic Lodge will hold its first meeting after the summer holidays, on Tuesday, Sept. 1st.

There was a slight shower of rain here about midnight on Monday and many parents got their children out of bed to let them see what rain looked like.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Baillentine and George who have been spending in their holidays in Nova Scotia and U. C. points for the past month, returned home Monday.

A bad hailstorm struck central Alberta last weekend from Red Deer south to Crossfield doing damage to 100% loss to crops.

The latest crop report shows total failures in the more distressed districts and yields of from 5 to 15 bushel per acre in western sections.

Hon. Chas. Cockroft provincial treasurer, and Hon. W. N. Chant, minister of Agriculture, were called to Ottawa to confer with the Dominion government over the completion of arrangements for relief of drought areas in this province.

R. M. S. "Queen Mary" claimed the blue ribbon for a record trans-Atlantic crossing last Monday. Her time was 4 days, 15 hours, 12 minutes. This is 4 hours less than the previous record of the "Nor-mandie."

Young Redcliff Couple Married Last Thursday

Dubeau—Wyatt

St. Patrick's Church, Medicine Hat, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Thursday August 20th, at 11 A. M., when Paula, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wyatt of this town, became the bride of Mr. Raymond Max Dubeau of Red Deer. Mr. and Mrs. Adam Dubeau, also of Redcliff, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a wedding gown of white crepe black satin with tulle and veil. She carried a beautiful bouquet of red roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Doris Wyatt, sister of the bride, was dressed in powder blue crepe. She wore a large picture hat in lacquer shade with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of gladioli.

The groom was supported by Mr. Eric Congram.

After the ceremony the wedding breakfast was served in the White Lunch Cafe when twenty five close friends and relatives partook of a sumptuous repast.

In the evening a reception and dance were held in the Revell hall which took place in the festively decorated hall when some 150 guests. The young couple left on Monday morning for a honeymoon at Waterton Lakes and their western points.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Dubeau will reside on the farm west of town.

Govt. To Control The Hours of Labor

48 Hour Week for Women And 54 For Men

A New Hours of Labor Act designed to control the maximum hours of labor in the province, will be introduced at the present session of the legislature, Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary, stated.

A new law would be established and the Minimum Wage Act and the Alberta Factories Act would be amended for the purpose of clearing the way for the new act.

Under the new act provision for a maximum 48 hour week for women and a 54 hour week for men would be made. Mr. Manning said.

Misses Joie Mailland and Phyllis Sheldon returned home Tuesday after spending their holidays at Calgary and Banff.

An Almost Centenarian Pays Redcliff a Visit

Mr. Bamforth Now or Never To Her Son, Here

Redcliff has the honor this week, of a visit from one of the pioneers of western Canada who did so much to lay the foundation for the growth and development of our western provinces. It is Mrs. Bamforth of Summer set, Man., who is paying a visit to her son, Mr. Geo. Bamforth and Mrs. Bamforth.

Mrs. Bamforth, who is now 74 years of age, came west and settled on a homestead in Manitoba in 1879, and has resided in the same district near Summer set ever since. Despite her advanced age she is still hale and hearty and being in possession of all her faculties is a most interesting conversationalist.

Mrs. Bamforth was born near Teterboro, Ont. and left her comfortable surroundings there to face the hardships of travelling by ox cart and river boat through the States long before automobiles and streamline buses were dreamed of.

Since coming to Redcliff Mrs. Bamforth had the pleasure of representing four generations with her son, grandson and great grand daughter, but when with her daughter in Manitoba she represents five generations.

The Review joins with Mr. Bamforth in welcoming his distinguished mother to Redcliff.

The dispute between the striking relief workers of Medicine Hat and the city council has been settled and the strikers have gone back to work again without gaining anything.

Mr. Charles Gordon, president of the Dominion Glass Co. Ltd., Mr. McMaster, vice president, and Sir Edward Beattie, president of the C. P. R. were visitors in town last Friday. While here they made an inspection of the Glass Plant.

Will the borrower kindly return the Review, everywhere.

Mrs. Mailland Has Fine Lot of Flowers

Greenhouse Open to Visitors to Inspect Them

If you are a lover of flowers, take a few minutes to visit Mrs. Mailland's greenhouse, these days. It is a sight worth seeing. Dahlias 11 inches in diameter—great shaggy beauties, and gladioli whose delicate coloring and length of flowering make them a breathless with admiration.

Mrs. Mailland is a real horticulturalist having originated many of her own plants. She does practically all the work in her greenhouse and garden herself and is always pleased to welcome any visitors who would like to see the splendid results of her labors.

No doubt Mrs. Mailland inherits her horticultural property from her father, Mr. A. E. Oueland, whose flower garden on Third St. is another beauty spot in town.

These two flower lovers have contributed more pleasure to those who daily pass their gardens than mere words can describe. Many visitors from Medicine Hat are expected this weekend. Many will see their bulbs for next year.

Age and Mental Capacity

In these days when much is heard of proposals to retire the elderly to allow youth to take their places, the aged and those who have passed what is commonly understood as the years of their prime will derive a good deal of comfort from recent discoveries of eminent psychologists.

In brief, it has been proved by actual tests, not promulgated as mere theories, that (1) Mental power does not decline with age, contrary to popular misconception, and (2) That the ability of adults of advancing years to learn new things is almost as great as that of youth.

The first-mentioned discovery, that the mind does not grow old in step with declining physical powers, is the result of tests made by Dr. Irving Lorge, psychologist of Teachers' College, Columbia University, but according to Albert Wiggin, in an article in the Reader's Digest, older people require a little more time than their youthful contemporaries to arrive at the same mental conclusion, the additional time requiring increasing somewhat with advancing years. In other words, there is no decline in mental capacity as one grows older, but there is a slowing down in the rate of mental processes.

As the result of a recent revision of mental tests given some years ago to hundreds of people ranging in age from ten to 90 years of age, in which all the tests were limited to time in answering the questions put to them, Dr. Lorge found that with a power premium, added to compensate for lack of speed the older age groups not only showed no loss of intellectual power but "the people of 50 and 60 had higher scores than those around 25. This means," he adds, "that they are being partly or largely due to the death of the slower and duller people."

When to this discovery is added the findings of Professor Edward L. Thorndike that older people have as great an ability to learn as youth, at least up to age 50 and 55, the older persons not only have no reason to believe that they should be "put to the shelf" but have good cause to decide that they are as valuable an asset to society as they were 20 or 40 years ago.

Dr. Thorndike's tests resulted in the general conclusion that adults up to at least 45 can learn new things about as well as young people. Their late years, and their old age, are almost entirely irrelevant. He shows from age 20 on, this small difference is offset in many cases by the older persons' interest in the subject, their feeling of its immediate practical value, and other factors, so that the real mental output of people up to 50 or 55 is often greater than that of people of about the same intelligence, working at the same tasks at 20 or 25.

Summing up his own conclusion as the result of his tests, Dr. Lorge said: "As far as mental ability is concerned, there is no retiring age. The probabilities are that the older a person becomes, the more valuable he becomes. He possesses the same mental power he had in his young manhood plus his wealth of experience and knowledge of his particular job. There are things that no youngster, however brilliant, can pick up. For the same reason there is very definite value to the idea of 'older statesmen' in politics and business."

These definite discoveries, established by exhaustive tests, should result in the re-establishment of confidence in their own powers on the part of the older generations and should serve to remind people of advancing years that there is no occasion for them to retire into their shells under a mistaken impression that they are "back numbers" and that there is no necessity to relegate themselves to mental arm chairs.

On the contrary, the announcement of these proven discoveries should stimulate the older folk, who have already accustomed themselves to the idea that their mental powers are inevitably failing because of advancing years, to again continue in the open and resume the place which, in their capacities warrant in the life of the family, the community and the nation. No longer need they imagine they are deficient in two essentials of happy and successful living: mental capacity and ability to learn.

To again quote Dr. Lorge: "As the years advance, we should with quiet confidence, allow ourselves a little greater handicap for age, but as far as mental power is concerned, I believe, we can now be assured that we need not allow ourselves any handicap at all."

Not An Easy Job

English Viper Finds It Impossible To Please People.

Listen to what Mrs. C. Paul Glendon, vicar of St. James church, in the Westminster suburb of London, has to say about his job in his parish magazine:

If he is devout, he is, accused of "spending all his time in that church of his." If he visits his parish he is "always putting his nose into other people's business." If he does not, they say, "we might be dead for all he cares."

If he tries to meet the wishes of his people he "has a mind of his own." If he carries out his own policy in his own way "he has no respect for other people's feelings."

There's this to be said about the clergyman and his job: As the average life insurance company—they send best wishes and really mean it.

If you have anything pleasant to say put it in paper; but quarrels, if we must quarrel, we should always be by word of mouth.

Biggest Short Wave Station

B.B.C. Is Going To Spend $1,250,000 On Work At Dventry

The British Broadcasting Corp. will have spent $1,250,000 in making Dventry the biggest short wave transmitting station in the world by the end of this year.

Six transmitters and a complicated system of 25 aerials with reflectors will give up to 100 per cent. better reception in the remote parts of the empire than does the existing equipment. A full 24-hour service will be possible if needed in 20 years of the present 17 1/2-hour service.

One of the transmitters radiating two beams in opposite directions will be able to serve South Africa and Canada simultaneously.

The government is determined to encourage the B.B.C. with "The Protection of England." Germany with "The Invasion of France." South Africa with a vast "wireless" broadcasting service.

Every effort is being made to have all six of the Dventry transmitters working at maximum efficiency in time for the proposed world-wide communication broadcasts.

Challenge And Opportunity

Co-operative Movement Offers Opportunities For The Youth

"If I were a young man today and was sincerely interested in agriculture, I would want to do a life work in which I felt reasonably sure of being able to render a real service; I would want to associate with intelligent, inspired companions, I would want to associate myself with the co-operative movement."

"A worker" in the co-operative movement daily faces both the challenge and the opportunity to draw on every atom of resourcefulness he possesses; to apply every bit of his ability and courage; to make every drop of growth of which he is capable.

"Economic freedom, spiritual freedom are the greatest possible possessions of the farmer. Regeneration kills freedom. The co-operative movement alone is the means for him to safeguard his independence."—H. E. Babcock, manager, Co-operative League Federation, Chicago.

Canada's poultry business and Canada are among those at the congress from 60 nations. The Canadians are headed by F. C. Elford of Ottawa. Canadian poultry business and former president of the congress, and F. C. Nunick, director of public relations and extension of the Department of Agriculture.

Paderewski In Film

Reported He Has Consented To Make His Art Available To Millions

Ignace Jan Paderewski, whose genius has thrilled music lovers the world over for nearly half a century, has at last consented to make his art available to millions through the medium of the cinema. It became known that the master pianist and post-war premier of Poland is to take part in a film now being made at the Dagenham studios in London.

It was the film which is scheduled to play Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, always the piece de resistance in his concert program, and selections from Chopin's works.

Biplane Goose Fies High

Makes Good Use Of His Double Pair Of Wings

Finally, the biplane goose, named after the baroness of Douglas Sawyer, Herson, N.Y., farmer, using its double set of wings to good advantage.

The bird, exhibited as a goosling at the New York State Fair last year, was able by poultry experts to be the only fowl with two pairs of wings to their knowledge. The goose was half wild and half tame. The upper are larger and longer. The second or under pair is much shorter.

Honor Memory Of Haig

Vimy Veterans Remember Commander Of British Armies

In France. The ancient abbey at Byrryburgh, Scotland, whose ruins have for four centuries looked over the rippling River Tyne, was the home of a service which saw the homage of the government and people of Canada paid to the memory of Earl Haig of Bemeray, who commanded the British armies in France during the war.

At the same time a wreath of poppies and Canadian maple leaves was deposited in the simple soldier's cross which marks the ashpur of Haig.

Rev. John Nelson, minister of Fairbank Presbyterian church, Toronto, and national representative of the tuberculous veterans' section of the Canadian Legion, was the preacher at the special service which was attended by members of the Vimy pilgrims, representatives of the Canadian government and many Scottish dignitaries.

The Toronto minister recalled the "scouring attacks" on the memory of Haig by those "who had become bold enough to launch them only when it was great and was silent forever." These had been met with calmness, with dignity and unflinching courage by Lady Haig, widow of the dead commander.

Used Notes In Braile

War-Blinded M.P. Gave Speech In Broadcasting Debate

It was a surprise to most M.P.'s to see Sir Ian Fraser, who was blind from the effects of a gas attack in the first world war, in a broadcasting debate. Sir Ian is the war-blinded M.P. who was responsible for the blind people's privileges of free wireless licenses.

The notes he used were embossed in Braile on light brown cards. Each card contained only one or two words as a heading for a section of his speech. Sir Ian Fraser held his notes in front of him and passed his finger along the card to find his next point. Using notes in this way he kept his head up, and his speech was not interrupted by the notes of most M.P.'s when they look down at their manuscript.

On the other hand, Major Tryon gave an example of a speech rendered largely inaudible by the use of a manuscript. The Postmaster-General's faint was the more glaring—London Daily Telegraph.

Anglo-Russian Trade

Commercial Agreement Establishing Credit For Soviet Orders

An Anglo-Russian commercial agreement establishing a £10,000,000 ($60,000,000) credit for Soviet orders for British exports was announced in London by Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade.

Russian orders are to be placed by Sept. 30, 1937. Runciman said that Soviet trade representatives had given formal assurance that Russia was to place orders up to the limit of the credit. They will not, however, include munitions.

Runciman also announced suspension of Anglo-Italian trade relations on the resumption of trade. Italy, he said, was unwilling to accept his suspension in regard to trade debts which could be considered "adequate."

At the same time Italy is imposing severe restrictions on imports from the United Kingdom, he stated.

Old Italian Theatre Found

Contained Relics Dating Back To Times Of Glorious Rome

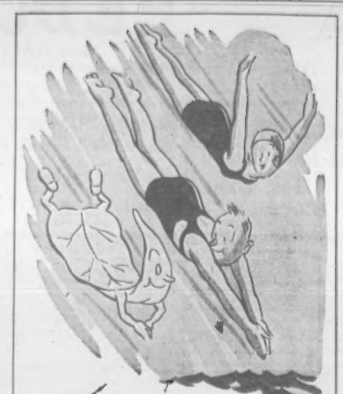

Discovery of an Augustan age theatre, regarded as one of the most important archaeological finds in Italy in recent years, has been announced. Even remnants of the machinery for raising the curtain were uncovered in the well-preserved centuries-old building.

It was found on the site of the ruins of Caesars and among the ruins were found his original statues, money and stagecraft vessels dating back to the time of the Caesars.

Caesars was the ancient Italian town where Mark Antony was reported to have held his orgies and where, at the foot of a mountain, the Romans constructed a still-existing amphitheatre.

Dear Too Dear

Dear are far too dear, according to A. Macpherson of Glenora, who recently applied to the Ontario Department of Agriculture for protection from the depredations of the deer. He has planted a garden twice this year only to have a herd of about 20 deer destroy it in uncontrolled raids. He estimated the deer had eaten about 8,000 cantaloupes and 8,000 pounds of late cabbage.

Just A Point Of View

Many Would Think Experience Of Cold Exciting Enough

When Gloria Hollister, the yellow-haired girl who has been near the floor of the ocean than any other living woman, came back not long ago from the zoological expedition she headed to British Guiana, South America, she announced that nothing exciting had happened.

That's all in the point of view, however. Miss Hollister, bred to adventure, thinks little of traveling over hundreds of miles of jungle—some of it never before seen by a white man—in one-ender planes.

The zoologist, though still in her twenties, is a member of the New York Zoological Society. Once, when the party of 20 was travelling by boat on a lonely river, they discovered, on awakening on shore in the morning, that their boat had been sunk by the swollen torrents and heavy rain in the night. But it was raised and the party continued its journey.

An international boundary, 3,000 miles in length, stretching Canada and the United States, was pointed to as a monument of peace in a world distracted by and under the domination of fear.

The reference was made at Bolinas, Calif., by Hans P. A. Cremer, federal minister of the interior at ceremonies at the International Peace Garden. More than 3,000 people attended to hear addresses by Governor Walter Weir of North Dakota and Senator Nye of North Dakota.

Official figures from Ottawa show that there were 19,000 more people on relief in Alberta in June this year than in June 1935. That is an increase, so the Edmonton Journal states of 27.5 per cent.

Hon. E. C. Manning is reported to have said that acceptance of stamped scrip in payment of provincial accounts "would result in weakening the cash position of the province". Yet this is the government which wants cities to accept scrip in lieu of cash for relief purposes. If the Province cannot afford to accept it for fear of weakening the cash position, neither can the cities. The city governments, too, have a responsibility to citizens. —Lethbridge Herald

Have Only One Desire

All Humanity Desires, King Edward's Appeal For Peace.

"Humanity cries out for peace and an assurance of peace, and you will find in peace opportunities of duty and service as noble as any bygone battlefields can show."

These words were uttered by King Edward VIII. in presenting the colors to the Grenadiers, the Coldstream and the Scots Guards at Buckingham Palace, Friday, June 10. His Majesty's life had been endangered by the hounding of a revolver by a man who, it is said, had tried to shoot, but found himself frustrated by spectators, and police.

"Humanity cries out for peace!" That message rings around the world—a world along with the firing of armaments and threatened by distant voices threatening and "you playing war."

The voices of the King were lifted above the tumult and the preliminary blast of trumpets, and it has reached the ears of the blatant and bloodthirsty war-mongers—"Humanity cries out for peace!" It was the appeal of a young monarch who holds the sceptre of the wisest and the mightiest Empire this world has ever known. But that power is not flaunted as an instrument of aggression. It is regarded by the King as the British people as the arbiter and the sentinel of peace.

"With all my heart I hope and indeed I pray that never again will our age and generations be called on to witness such scenes as this on any day." What effect will this appeal of the King have on the power-hungry of Europe, Italy and Japan? How will the common people of those countries receive it? Will nothing satisfy the ambitions of those dictators but the spectacle of devastation and slaughter? Have their people the remotest desire to write in their newspapers or write and choke in the atmosphere of deadly gas?

"Humanity cries out for peace!" The King speaks not only for the British people, but for humanity, who embrace the common people of all the nations, whose one desire is to live out their little lives in peace.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Musical Tap

Singing At Social Gatherings Not

What it was Yesterday. Hailed singing in America was once a dignified means of entertaining a company. There was singing at social gatherings in parlors, in the games and dances of young persons, as well in the chimney nook of farmhouse or by the stone fire on the crossroads store, in the cabin, or on the creek. How much has changed since then, and how much less there will be as time goes on.

Musical is now turned on rather than sung by groups or individuals. And the very multiplicity of new compositions and the variety of songs for sound films, or for radio singers and crooners—lowers the quality of those who produce and imparts their chance of survival. One song has hardly achieved a degree of circulation before others crowd it out. There is little that is memorable in the text.

Will any one in the future wish to recover our popular song hits of today and their airs? Perhaps. But I feel no certainty of it.—Louise Pound in the American Scholar.

Vegetation Becomes Poisonous

Droeth In United States Means Certain Green Food For Animals

A warning that green manure certain green vegetation into poison deadly to animals was issued by the United States department of agriculture.

Experts said that livestock in drought areas must be kept out of the drought-resistant green fields of manna grass, cane or any kind of grain sorghum.

In ordinary years these green crops are safe for pasture but when their growth is stunted by dry weather, death of the seeds—hydrocyanic or prussic—results.

It was explained that when drought interferes with the growth of these plants a chemical reaction results. Two harmless substances, a glucose and an enzyme, react to form the poison.

Business Over The Phone

Collected Good Jokes

Polish Business Man Thinks Scottish Best Of All

Meet the first non-professional joke-collector of the world—Mr. Borowski, a Polish business man of about 30 living in Brussels.

"When they are not burly, but simply humorous, jokes put in the limelight the error, the sine and often the virtues of people," he explains.

"About five years ago their great social influence dawned on me, and, together with a friend, Dr. Theodore Outman, I decided to collect the best of them."

"My collection now includes about 2,000 jokes, which I dare say are the cream of the world's humor."

"The maid handed with joy . . . 'No more wages for you,' added the master."

"Second place goes to the Jewish jokes, third to the jokes of Marx, fourth to English jokes, fifth to American humor, and sixth to Russian."

New Rose Varieties

Three Were Exhibited At Flower Show In England

At a recent show of the National Rose Society of England, held at Westminster, three twenty-seeded roses, of new varieties, were on exhibition. One of these, named Miss England, cream-colored flushed with yellow and a fragrance like that of old tea roses, was awarded a certificate of merit. The two other roses were Ben Chut a Yellow, a very fragrant bush of vivid yellow coloring, and Lady Susan, which is a delicately scented salmon rose variety.

A new fragrant carnation named Molly, which is marked with red on a pale pink ground, has won the gold challenge cup for the best British scented carnation. It was shown by the Farnham Royal Nursery, Bournemouth.

"I never could make out Pharoah's dream—how could seven lean like a fat kid and not show any result?"

"I couldn't understand that until I married. My wife and I are one fat business book and at the end of the year the little housekeeping book had crumpled up the business book and nothing was to be seen in their place."

Blind Man Works Garden

With strings pulled about as tight, Edward Harris, 59, blind for eight years, plants and works a garden in Stevens Park, N.Y., which appears to have been laid out by a professional gardener. "They tell me it looks good, but I can't see it," Harris said. "But I expect potatoes are as pumpkins, large enough to use a crowbar to get them out. Harris maintains his garden by using a hoe in one hand and feeling the dirt with the other. 2163

Worked Only One Way

Woman Did Not Carry Out Social Quality Idea

Mrs. Catherine Macaulay, a liberal theorist, frequently defended her vehemently expressed belief in social equality to debate with the intractable Dr. Samuel Johnson, the blunt man protesting that she would not practice the tenet in which she professed to believe.

"Finally he pretended to fall in with her view, and said, 'To give you unquestionable proof that I am in earnest, madame, I propose that this civil, respectable fellow-citizen—your footman—be allowed to sit down and dine with me.'"

Mrs. Macaulay indignantly refused. Reporting the incident later, Dr. Johnson remarked: "That is frequently the way of lovers—they wish to level down as far as themselves, but they cannot bear the thought of leveling up to themselves."—Christian Science Monitor.

Belongs To Producer

Man Justly Entitled To What He Makes For Himself

What a man produces, with his own hands is rightly his own. What he produces in excess of what he consumes, if he uses it to assist in further production, is capital. He is justly entitled to all he produces up to what he saves by his own efforts. "Share the wealth by taking the rich," "social justice," "end of poverty" and "regimentation of industry" are merely the slogans of politicians cluttering popularity and of bureaucratic dictators bent on changing our form of government. No one denies the obligation of society to care for the helpless, but if we train people to believe that they have a right to live on the bounty of others who will do the work!—Henderson Ross.

Overcrowding Is Banned

New Public Offices Under Provision Of Housing Act

England has ruled that overcrowding will be a public offense in all districts where the number of overcrowded families is less than 100 or less than two per cent. of the number of working-class houses. In districts where overcrowding is more acute a later date may be necessary. Sir Kingsley Wood, announced this decision in a circular to all housing authorities on the further steps needed to bring into operation the whole of the over-crowded provision of the 1935 Housing Act. Those already living in overcrowded conditions at the prescribed date are protected until other suitable accommodation is available.

Good Will Offering

Strut From Rickhof Plane Is Presented To Germany

A piece of crimson strut from the plane of Captain Rickhof was presented to the German air ministry at Berlin during an appropriate ceremony.

The presentation was made by P. J. Mulqueen, chairman of the Canadian Olympic committee and accompanied by General Edward Miller, secretary of state for aviation, at the air ministry.

Captain W. R. "Wop" May of Edmonton, noted northern pilot, picked up the piece of strut after Captain Roy Brown brought down Rickhof's plane, killing the "Red Knight." Rickhof was attacking May's plane when Brown flew to the rescue.

The strut, that held together the two wings of the German plane, was in May's possession until recently, when he asked the Canadian Olympic committee to present it to the German government as a goodwill offering.

The piece almost got lost while en route to Germany. When every detail of preparation for the ceremony had been completed it was discovered the fragment was missing. An Olympic official who had charge of it put it into his overcoat pocket on the day of the ceremony on the train between Montreal and Havre. Finally, as Olympic and government officials had decided there could be no ceremony of presentation the coat arrived and the precious piece was recovered.

"We are returning this strut piece to Germany as a token of friendship and respect by the people of Canada and by the Canadian Olympic team," declared Mr. Mulqueen, as he handed it to General Miller.

General Miller, in behalf of General Wilhelm Goering, reich air minister, expressed thanks for the handsome gesture.

"During the war," he said, "German aviators always appreciated the gallantry of the aviators of other nations."

When Gen. Goering received the strut he at once called his thanks to Captain May.

An Early Explorer

Memorial To Henry Kelcey, Trillitee To A Great Adventurer

There was much eloquence at the funeral of Henry Kelcey, a pioneer of the north-western states, who was unveiled to Henry Kelcey, described as a "Hudson's Bay official."

Over the years in the clear air of the northern towns the stones will bring to mind this member of the great line of adventurers. But it will not be easy to remember, in spite of the bronze plate, that this pioneer of the north-western states was not a man brave in years and experience when his fame was made in this then vast unknown land. He was a young lad not long out from the streets of London when he jumped over the walls of the Port at the age of 16 and ran away to join the Indians. Months later he sent back word that if his superiors would pardon him he would start exploration inland.

It was on this hundreds of miles journey that he came perhaps to the country, far enough away to record the sight of the buffalo. There is a story that on the long march the young lad, alone with a company of red men, succumbed to the sleep which his youth demanded. When he awoke the hunters had gone and he was in the wilderness. Henry waited until the evening when the hunters' camp fire roasting the pig gave him his bearings. Then he rejoined them.

It isn't old history that walks where the cairns stand. It isn't stories of old fights, old loyalties, old adventures. It is the story of a young man whose name became forever in the records of this province. The Pus has his claim. But the name of Henry Kelcey belongs as far as the winds of the West may travel.—Winnipeg Press.

Lord Cecil Has Highest Paid School For Boys In World

In being appointed president of Elton, Lord Hugh Cecil succeeds to what is said to be the highest paid school position in the world—although the salary is not officially revealed. The present is the highest authority at the college and presides at all the meetings of the fellows.

The office dates from the time of Henry VI, the founder of the college, who stipulated in the statutes that the appointment should be made by the monarch.

Preparing For Gas Attacks

Britain Is Equipping Her Army With Masks

The great number of gas attacks that Great Britain has decided to equip every one of her 40,000,000 people with a perfected type of gas mask is a quiet bit of news with which to confront the morning man and eggs. There is nothing remarkable about it, of course. The harsh reality no longer at the roving range of anti-gas drills in European capitals, and the knowledge that every big Continental city has marked out its gas shelters and prepared its warnings and police measures; the gas-proof cellars is a common feature of recent European architecture, and all the Governments have established their scientific munitions in constructing the populace in the best means of cheating asphyxiation or saving off the more agonizing fear of having their skins slowly burned from their bodies by mustard gas. The British, who have been known to doubt the real efficacy of these expedients, are merely going about it a little more thoroughly. And, as the picture rises of these millions of civilized British men, women and children sweating in their stuffy rubber nose bags behind their Ishamian goggles, the very matter-of-factness suddenly underlines the appalling silent horror with which human fate and folly have darkened the skies of a large part of the civilized world.

There are many arguments, of course, to prove that the air danger to civilian populations is grossly exaggerated. The statistics for 1918 and the faintest picture of the World War was to expose the gas attack as a mere waste of time and money on gross exaggerations. Nobody really knows. But history, technical advance, the process of military evolution and insane nationalism have already brought Europe to gas made by the millions and a kind of helpless resignation; and it is only the inconceivable blessing of geography which has saved us so far.—New York Herald-Tribune.

To Treat Asthma

New Remedy Appears In A Report Of American Journal

A new treatment for asthma, which enables patients to sniff relief by inhaling vapor, is available to the public. The treatment was recommended particularly for children in a report in the American Journal of Hygiene.

The remedy was not entirely new, but a new form of an older treatment. It used the same compound of ethyl ether and hydrochloric acid which had been used in hypodermic injections.

The new treatment was developed by Dr. James B. Granger and Dr. Albert H. Howe, of Oakland, Calif.

Does Away With Shyness

New Drug Creates Confidence After The First Dose

A new drug which relieves the blood pressure and thus cures depression and shyness is being tried in a recent issue of the Lancet.

After a dose, even the most depressed patients are able to overcome their shyness, and talk spontaneously. They feel unusually full of energy and self-confidence. Tests for the mental ability of patients after taking the drug show that they are able to concentrate better, and can work out problems faster and more accurately than before.

Mounted By Gasoline

Fumes From Reputed Old Of Horn

It took more than pushing the first and second valves down to get "Puzzy," the captured Mexican, to come out of a ham horn.

Puzzy, curious, decided to explore the interior. The Gasoline tried to finally coax the squirrel out, and was called on the Animal Reserve League. After connecting many schemes they hit upon a solution by placing gasoline in the mouth of the ham and blowing the fumes into the instrument. Puzzy soon retreated.

Honor German War Dead

Canadian Olympians Place Wreath On Grave Of Unknown Soldier

The Canadian Olympic team paid tribute to Germany's war dead, placing a wreath of maple leaves on the grave of the unknown soldier. The ceremony, held in what was once the palace of Frederick the Great, attracted thousands protesting under the name of the League of Nations. It was the first in which an official Canadian party had honored the war dead of Germany since the armistice.

Dr. Ross Miller, director of medical services for the department of pensions and national health, represented the Canadian government. Grouped around the memorial with him and paraded the two black blocs to the memorial, William Buckley Peden, world famous professional bicycle racer from Victoria, and Tom Allison, coach of the Canadian rowing team, marched at the head of the parade, carrying the wreath.

Money For Television

B.B.C. Likely To Need More Funds To Launch Service

Although all plans for launching television service from London in October have been made by the British Broadcasting Corporation, more funds may be needed. Official regular three-hour daily programmes will begin at that time. A television set of 100 has been approved and are working in Alexandra Palace, new home of the project. "Our plans for television are complete," said the B.B.C. official, "but no one can say what expenditures will be necessary for launching and maintaining the new service. Already the $900,000 granted the Television Commission has been exceeded. Programme expenditure must be extra."

A Remarkable Woman

Social Reform Worker In London Dies At 85

One of the most remarkable women of modern times died in London recently, at the age of 85, just when a great scheme of social reform which she started 30 years ago was coming to triumphant completion.

She was Dame Henrietta Barnett, founder of Hampstead Garden Suburb, who died at her home there, in South Square.

A friend of Queen Mary—who more than once visited the Garden Suburb to open new buildings—Dame Henrietta was the widow of the late Canon Barnett, who left a West End parish to work among the poor of Whitechapel.

She had a vast range of social activities, and her amazing health and energy up to the time of her breakdown just over 18 months ago she ascribed to five simple rules. They were:

Work very hard.

Read newspapers carefully every day.

Get very little sleep.

Say your prayers very often.

Dame Henrietta tried herself wholeheartedly into her husband's work in the East End. They persuaded a number of undergraduates, including the late Arnold Toynbee, to spend their holidays with them in Whitechapel, and out of the enthusiasm for social service thus engendered grew the world-famous institution known as Toynbee Hall.

How To Spend A Million

Interesting Content Being Held In Middle-Western U.S. City

Precision knows that a million dollars and a man who has a million dollars don't know what to do with it, and once in a while it happens in real life.

In the current Atlantic Monthly there appears the statement of such a case. The anonymous gentleman who is vouched for by his bankers lives in a middle-western city of 100,000. He is getting on, and he wishes to leave the community a million dollars. The town has ample educational, library, playground, agricultural, facilities. He wishes to leave his million so that it will do the most good. He offers a $1,000 prize to the person giving him the best answer.

Here is, undoubtedly, the most interesting contest in many months. The public is eternally invited to devise advertising slogans and meeting testimonials for various products, but telling a millionaire how to leave his million—that is a real contest. It sounds easy, but let anyone try to tell him how to leave his million, and he will let him try to formulate a million dollars for the greatest public good. A million dollars to be used in a way which shall benefit all, old and young, the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, would be the wish of Solomon or prodigality of Tugwell—Detroit Saturday Night.

Used Crane Instruments

Doctor In East India Performed Operation With Instruments

An eye operation performed on a woman in India with hair pins, crochets hooks and a pair of embroidery scissors as makeshift instruments was described to the East India Association recently by Sir Henry Trieman Holland. He had been engaged in medical work in Baluchistan for 36 years, and is devoting his full-time to the raising of funds for rebuilding the hospital at Quetta.

"The woman had a double cataract," he said. "She refused to go to hospital, so I decided to operate under a juniper tree."

"A woman provided me with a fine crochets hook, which acted as an eye hook. From some hair pins we made a rough and ready eye speculum, and a pair of embroidery scissors served for its scissors. I had with me some cocaine, a cataract knife and a pair of dressing forceps."

I operated on both eyes and the old Pathan woman had an excellent result in spite of my treatment."

Sir Henry also told of a native upon whom he operated when he was isolated from a palm tree. Immediately after the operation he was hoisted on to a camel and taken 70 miles to the nearest railway station to be sent to hospital. The man made a perfect recovery.

No Pure White Color

The color of perfect white does not exist on earth. Closest to it are new fallen snow and purest chalk. Third comes the whiteness of sea and science and industry. The results of three years study to prove this, announced as the first results of an international conference at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by David L. Macdonald of the Institute.

BLIND VETERANS GIVE AMAZING DISPLAY

Recently several blind seamen travelled to Putney, England, to take part in the annual "Blind Veterans' Day" at the Royal Albert Hall. Above are some of the veterans. They were accompanied by a band of blind musicians. The veterans were given a tour of the hall and a luncheon. They were then taken to the Royal Albert Hall where they gave a magnificent display of their skills. The veterans were given a tour of the hall and a luncheon. Historic Sites

Two More Monuments To Commemorate Settlement Of The West

Erection of two more monuments which will commemorate in stone the saga of the settlement of the west are under consideration by the historic monuments and sites board, Ottawa, Judge P. W. Howay, New Westminster, B.C., western member of the board, announced in Winnipeg.

One will commemorate the old Dawson road from the head of Lake Superior to Winnipeg. It will probably be erected in the neighborhood of St. Anne des Chenes, 38 miles east of Winnipeg, Judge Howay said, and may take the form of a cairn. Tentative plans indicate it will be built this year, for dedication next year.

The second monument will commemorate the founding of Fort Macleod at the mouth of the Winnipeg river by La Verendrye. This monument will, according to Judge Howay, not only commemorate the founding of the fort, but will emphasize also the general trading importance of the spot—Winnipeg Free Press.

Friends For A Week

Hon. R. B. Bennett And Mayor McGeer Fraternize At Vancouver One for the pugilist books:

Hon. R. B. Bennett was nothing less than "Gus Achates—freely translated, 'faithful friend'—of Mayor C. G. McGeer after they had fraternized in opening the Vancouver golden jubilee. The Latin phrase is Mr. Bennett's but he qualified it with, "for a week."

Acknowledging a week of a photograph taken at Fort Moody, July 3, Mr. Bennett and the mayor and the engineer and conductor of the first transcontinental train to arrive there 10 years ago, Mr. Bennett wrote to Mr. McGeer:

"The photograph is historic. It shows the first transcontinental train to arrive there 10 years ago, Mr. Bennett wrote to Mr. McGeer: 'There is one thing certain, they little dreamed then they would be photographed with the mayor of Vancouver and his future Achates for a week.'"

Crushing up of rusty Latin revealed that Achates was the staunch friend of Aeneas. The phrase has become synonymous with 'faithful friend,' and Mayor McGeer was very pleased.

The Fortress Of Aden

Is Important Point On Britain's Route To Far East

It was news to most Canadians, says the Toronto Mail and Empire, that Aden, the important British port in the south of the Red Sea, is a part of British India. This information comes to us in an announcement from the British government on April 1 next. Aden will be separated from India and become a British colony under a governor and commander-in-chief. Aden is, of course, an important fortress on Britain's route to the Far East and Australia.

Age limit for the entry of the volunteer pilots will be between 18 and 25. They will receive an annual stipend of $25.

Upper Berths In Plane

Two-Storey Machine Just Designed Will Carry 66 Passengers

We are not quite sure if you can go up to bed in the Zeppelin but you may soon do so in the two-storey sleeper plane. From Holland, for example, comes word that Anthony Fokker has designed a "two-storey" passenger plane which will carry 66 passengers with adequate sleeping accommodations, dressing rooms and the like.

This new "P-56" is described as an "elegant machine" with the design of the "London, Amsterdam and Berlin Fokker 'P-36', now in service on the 'London, Amsterdam and Berlin Fokker' comfortably. The 'P-56', equipped with most of the modern conveniences, is not considered an experiment since its design on smaller scale has met all the tests of regular commercial service. Its maximum speed is figured at 225 miles an hour and its 'cruising speed' at 200 miles in high altitudes and 185 miles at 6,000 feet. Its 'absolute ceiling' is reached, we are told at 28,000 feet, while the 'service ceiling' is 24,000 feet.

The famous Dutch designer apparently foresees an era of extremely high-speed flying—planes that will make their long-distance flights at altitudes around 20,000 feet. Nothing is said about the cruising range of the new machine, but it is presumably his design will adopt it to transatlantic service and provide fuel storage sufficient for the 10,000 miles overseas routes where refueling stations must be few and far between.—Brandon Star.

German Buying Back Steel

Scrap Metal From Scrap Pile Derelicts Being Re-Sold

The German battleships surrendered after the war at Scapa Flow are going back to Germany as part of their modern navy. Their steel plates and guns are cut into small pieces and sold to the Germans. The scrap metal is taken to the German steel works and there reforged into ships' plates for warships.

Incidentally, many of the steel plates of the liner Queen Mary were forged from the remelted steel of the German battleships, and some steel on board her also came from the same materials.

Staging Unique Race

Novia Scotia On-Tanks Will Show Their Speed

Novia Scotia's on-tanks, "show-me-the-speed" races, are going to get a chance to show what they can do.

The race of the Halifax district trades and labor council announced the "race of the century" for october Sept. 1, Labor day. They don't decide the length of the course yet, nor the time limit.

Already one entry in the color of the "race of the century" has entered "Gee-Haw," the racing pride of the village.

And the others, if any others enter, will pull the regular on-cart. It is a go-as-you-please event—walk, run, trot, gallop or pace.

Buonose Fitted With Engines

Champion Fishing Schooner Makes Trial Spin Under Power

Not quite so rakish with her topmasts and bowsprit removed, but not so dependent on the whims of wind after installation of new engines, the international champion fishing schooner Buonose made her first trial spin under power recently.

With 300 passengers aboard, the schooner was towed to the open water and returned. Captain Angus Walters said the change made little difference in the working and maneuvering of his ship.

She made nine miles per hour under power, he said, and would do better after the engine had been broken in.

Buonose will not be out of any more fishing season races. A moment's notice her two new engines can remove the old bowsprit and masts returned to their proper places.
